It was a great session today and each of you contributed to its success. Thanks for your commitment and engagement.

The session ended with a poll asking "how likely are you to try a new teaching tool and/or make a change in the learning environment?" All of those responding indicate they would likely do so. As you reflect on today's session think about how you would modify the topic you described in your first assignment. Be prepared to share, during the beginning of Session 4 in the chat box or open microphone, how you might apply a different teaching tool to your topic.

The assignment for Session 4 is posted to the Design for Learning Website:
http://www.ksre.ksu.edu/employee_resources/p.aspx?tabid=300

Deb Gebeke from North Dakota will facilitate "Assessing Learning Outcomes." In past years Deb has focused on each of your topics to apply to the session. I always look forward to her engagement with participants as well.

This message also includes recorded information for Session 3.
