Design for Learning Participants,

Thanks for your valuable contributions to Session 4 this morning. And also to facilitator Deb Gebeke, who dedicated considerable efforts to reviewing each of your topics and providing individualized feedback for assessing outcomes. To the North Dakota participants, thanks for your patience in letting the folks from other states go first. I hope you will seek feedback from Deb at your convenience.

I would encourage all of you to listen in to the end of the recordings when Deb was visiting with three of the North Dakota participants who waited until the very end. I picked up on three creative evaluation suggestions which included: using a refrigerator magnet message, text message follow-up and email message to spouses. This little bit of information may make you curious enough to check it out.

The final Session is March 15 with Shannon Washburn facilitating. Shannon recommends the book, Brain Rules: 12 Principles for Surviving and Thriving at Work, Home and School, by John Medina. It is optional, but many of our past participants have checked it out from a library or purchased for their own benefit. Shannon has given you some links to get some information from a Brainrules Website in preparation for the session. Be sure to visit the DFL Web site for the Session 5 assignment.

This recording started at about the 18 minute mark and during Deb's presentation. It missed a couple of her slides, so look at the handout on the DFL Website for those slides.
